

Mana Smith

Years of attempted attempts met with failure. It seemed the combination of magic and steel was not to be understood. Until one day you began to look inward. Finding your own mana You began to imbue a bit of yourself into your crafts. Producing armor and weapons never though possible

Druid Description

You gave your bow to mother nature, and, in her infinite kindness she gave it back. Stronger than ever before you understand the world in it's language, not yours. You have formed an unbreakable bond with your animal Companion and with them you will protect the newly found beauty that is this world

Marksmen Description

Years with your bow have taught you that there is no greater pride than that of a clean quick kill. As such you looked to improve your bow and perhaps pick up a new weapon, to ensure such pride will never fade

Blacksmith

You have an innate understanding of metals, knowing the best way to work them into powerful weapons and tools

Ranger

At a young age you demonstrated an unparalleled affinity for the bow, as such you choose to improve said affinity into an art

Knight

Honor and commitment, to be the shield by which your home and family shall fall behind. That was the oath you took when you chose the life of a knight

Draco Knight

Your time as a Knight has taught you that to be a shield means far more than to just stand in the way of danger, but to actively get in the way of it. You tossed your shield to the side learning new tactics to ensure you will always be in the face of the threat and never relent until those you care for are safe

Wight Knight

Demonblood, Oathbreaker, kinslayer... These names amongst many others are what they call you. You once Believed in their practices, their teachings and ways. But years of being their shield has shown you the truth, that being that The only true safety one has in this world is found in the comfort of death. To be true to your oath you must follow this newfound truth.